

BLISS LOGUE

Chee Huang is a firm believer in purpose-driven architecture, synergising economic, environmental and social dynamics, to impact positive change and bring delight to the everyday lives. His pursuit in synthesis includes Singapore Sports Hub, Our Tampines Hub, Bukit Canberra in Sembawang and Punggol Regional Sports Centre – all pioneering models of complex integrated community, sports and lifestyle hubs in Singapore. Chee Huang also champions numerous corporate social responsibility initiatives such as Project Bus Stop, Goodlife!Makan – an elderly activity centre for stay-alone seniors and co-workplace for youth charity, Heartware Network.

A strong advocate in progressive architectural profession, Chee Huang led the fraternity in driving sustainable design, ethical and enterprising practices grounded in innovative and social causes, as the President of the Singapore Institute of Architects from 2018 to 2020. He partakes in the larger discourse of the built environment in numerous design advisory panels and committees for various agencies and institutions. Chee Huang is also recognised as one of Singapore emerging architects in Urban Redevelopment Authority (URA)'s latest edition of 20 under 45.
